

You've got 75 tons of futuristic fighting machine at your fingertips. You punch the throttle forward, and your BattleMech strides out into high noon of the planet Solaris VII.

On the horizon, an opponent's 'Mech darts around the blasted ruins of a building. It's Charlie, your officemate, and he's going to pay for taking your last candy bar! You slide your crosshairs onto him, squeeze the trigger, and he comes apart in a boiling fireball. As your 'Mech's feet scatter his smoking remains, you scan the arena for other enemies. Only one thought goes through your head: "Charlie'll be back, and now he'll be gunning for me!"
